What are cookies?

Cookies are small files containing letters and numbers that are stored by the browser on the hard drive of your computer or mobile device.

There are three types of cookies:

Session cookies: they expire when you close your browser (or if you remain inactive for a certain amount of time). They allow you not to re-enter information when you go to a new page.

Persistent cookies: these persist even when the browser is closed. They are used to remember your passwords and login information so you don't have to re-enter them every time.

Third Party Cookies: These usually correspond to the domain of the website on which they are located. They are installed by third party websites, collect data about your browsing behavior and habits, and allow them to track you across multiple sites.
